To Build Christs Body

The easiest way to do the hardest thing.

We have to face it. Death is a fact of life.

There's really no way to avoid the emotional strain it causes. But there is a way to avoid the financial strain death causes. You can buy funeral insurance. That's what thousands of Alabamians are doing. In fact, about two out of every three people who die in Alabama each year are covered by funeral insurance. And the Brown-Service Funeral Policy issued by Liberty National Life Insurance Company is the most popular policy of this type sold in Alabama. Here are three facts you might want to know about the Brown-Service Funeral Policies.

Reasonable Premiums

The premium to the policyholder is based on the actual cost of providing a funeral. A subsidiary company of Liberty National has invested more than a million dollars in a casket factory which uses the latest, and most efficient methods and machines in order to reduce the cost of caskets to the minimum consistent with high quality. Caskets used in Brown-Service funerals are manufactured in this factory and furnished by the company at cost so that the policyholder gets the benefit of a wholesale price. The Funeral Director who services Brown-Service Funeral Policies is able to furnish his services at a reduced price because of the steady volume of prepaid business which his contract assures him. Let's take an average situation to illustrate what a policy costs.

If you are 27 years old, your wife is 25, and you have two small children, ages 5 and 2, you can buy four policies, paid up in 10 years for only $2.13 a week. Each policy have to do.

will provide a $600 funeral. The most you can pay is $1,108. And the total retail value of the four funerals to be provided is $2,400. That's more than twice as much as the most you can pay. You're actually purchasing benefits at a wholesale price. If death should occur before the policy is paid up, no further premiums are paid.

And you get all the benefits of the policy. Benefits if death occurs in Alabama

The policyholder will get a complete funeral consisting of: Transportation to the funeral home up to 35 miles, embalming, preparation for burial, casket, burial suit or dress, the services of an experienced Funeral Director, a place for holding the memorial service, and transportation to the place of interment up to 35 miles.

In the event a more expensive funeral is desired, the authorized Funeral Director will give credit for the full retail value of the policy on the cost of the funeral selected.

Nearly 200 leading Funeral Directors in Alabama are authorized to service the Brown-Service Funeral Policy. Your Liberty National agent will be happy to supply you a

Benefits if death occurs outside of

The policy will pay a cash benefit as specified in the policy. On older policies the cash benefit is half the retail value and on currently issued policies it is two-thirds of

If you don't have a Brown-Service Funeral Policy, see your Liberty National agent. He'll explain how easily you can have this most basic of all insurance. It's the easiest way for you to help

Let's talk . . . ABOUT OUR TEENS By Jack Brunson

You have probably made or heard the statement, Teen-agers have certainly changed since the time I was growing up." On the other hand parents and adults have changed, in many instances, as much not more, than teen-agers have changed. This is one of the reasons I obtained this series of articles for publication in an effort to communicate with as many parents as possible. The title of this series could just as easily be changed to "Let's Talk About Parents.'

Today's Subject: "The Beard, the Moustache and the Hair"

One subject that never fails to come up in parental circles in this day and age is HAIR. . . . hair on the head, hair on the face, hair in the eyes. . ..hair anywhere you can grow it and that's where a lot of teens are aggravating their parents to tears. I have seen parents who are otherwise generally calm, collected, well-balanced people reach the point of utter despair trying to find some way to get their teens to do something with their hair to make them look less like prehistoric cave dwellers. Some teens seem to delight in the fact that this is really a positive method of truly upsetting their parents and they go all out!

aren't all the "long hairs" and so it follows that not all "good guys" are short haired people. However, in the present day "youth revolution" the growing of long hair does seem to give a youth the feeling of individuality and a sense that "the rules don't apply to me because I'm special". The fact remains that most parents DO NOT While all this lamenting about long hair goes on, one cannot help noticing that fathers and young men in their late twenties and over are wearing their hair quite a bit longer athan they used to and, many of them are wearing old fashioned moustaches, beards and what have you. So, if the adults have given in to the changing trend in hair styles and facial adornment involving hair, we ca hardly expect that the teens are going to give it up without a I have often heard it said that law officers pay closer attention to the activities of "long hairs" than they do to those of the "clean cut" variety. And, I can't say that this would be entirely wrong. Our experience has proved that "long hairs" seen to feel they can get away with whatever they wish to undertake, whether it involves law violations of minor or major porportion. On the other hand, a makes him feel he is being watched more closely in everything he And, probably this is one of the main reasons for growing the disgust. This would seem to reflect a basis in immaturity as with a small child; if he cannot get attention "being good" he'll throw a tantrum. . . . attention follows usually in the form of getting his backsides warmed, but nevertheless it is attention. On a recent nationally televised program a former White House top advisor was interviewed. . . . a man in his sixties. Here he was, a highly respected, (we will assume), adviser to the President of the United States, and his hair looked like a hornet's nest just blown apart by a large firecracker. If people like this allow their hair to become unkempt, it sets a very poor example for hair long. . . . it attracts attention, if only in the form of complete

he youth. So, it would seem, long hair is here for the duration of the fad so why let it get you down? There is at least one case of record which tells of a mother who was so ashamed of her son's excessively long, stringey hair she decided to do something drastic. She awaited her opportunity and inally when the occasion came up for her to attend a function where her son wanted her present, she came in her oldest, most out of styleand ill fitting clothing, and an old pair of dirty, run-over s. The son was so shocked he left the meeting immediately. Later at home he confronted his mother about her attire. She told him that was exactly the way she felt when her friends met him a haircut the next day. If your teen's hair makes you ashamed and disgusted you'll probably have to do something very unique to get it changed. We in law enforcement have decided we'll not let it bother us. We figure a good sign of leaving childish ways behind and heading for hood is a well styled head of hair, not too long, not too short and perhaps a neatly trimmed beard, if desired. Of course everyone we "do business with" will be treated equally when it comes to law enforcement in our community. However, it is always easier for us to work with a person who is neat about his person than someone who is obviously trying his best to look obnoxious. We're only human too!
